Business administration and other students at Canada under special regulation in 1939-40 numbered 99,000, an increase of 10,000 over the previous year.

Officials of the "Wings for Britain" fund announced receipt of $35,000 from the British Empire League, Winnipeg, for the purchase of a fully-equipped ship.

Wood For Sheep Industry

Roof of highest quality can be produced in Prairie Provinces.

There is no branch of agricultural production in Canada which might be so completely self-sufficient as the sheep industry and the production of wool. A release recently issued by the Dominion Wool Board states that the total wool production in 1939 was 1,000,000 pounds, while the consumption in that year amounted to 1,018,000 pounds. It would thus be necessary to import Canada was required to import something like $3,498,000 pounds of wool.

There seems to be no effective reason why Canada should not produce all her wool requirements. Authorities on the subject maintain that wool of the highest quality can be produced in the Dominion and particularly in the prairie provinces.

There is, however, one thing that is a deficiency in machinery and manufacturing establishments necessary to process the wool, and experienced labor is not available. Canada has shown during the past year and a half that she can, under pressure, develop industry. Surely the country can set up manufacturing establishments to process wool.

Hundreds of millions of bales of wool are clipped up in the wool value systems of the country. Western Canada is faced with the problem of taking millions of bales of wool out of production. This is the sheep industry offers an opportunity for further diversification in prairie agriculture. It should not be neglected.—Canadian Herald

British Admiralty Makes Plans To Cope With Shipping Losses

London.—The Admiralty appointed a commander-in-chief of the western approaches to British—a virtual commander of the "Battle of the Atlantic"—after Prime Minister Churchill had announced from No. 10 Downing street that he is sending Sir Arthur Brierley, parliamentary secretary for the shipping ministry, to the United States to work out details of American aid to British shipping.

"First developments in the frankly-aided shipping crisis came from the report of the admiralty," A. V. Alexander, director of a hatching office, said that a British vessel "will not be certain it will be sunk" if the Empire builds out into United States aid is received.

Named to the command of the western approaches was Admiral Sir Percy Bland, 41, whose service with the Royal Navy goes back to the days of the Victoria and who was stationed in China before the war.

Sir Percy thus is virtually in command of the main British naval force for the "Battle of the Atlantic."

The Press Admiralty commended. "The appointment was made," Sir Percy will lead Britain's naval forces in the Atlantic struggle to be waged against enemy raiders harrying shipping in the Atlantic."

He says he is facing perhaps the most crucial stage of the war in which the Empire is called upon to play a very great part.

Ronald H. Cross, shipping minister, emphasized the same point in his address to the Engineers' Institute.

"By far, the most crucial stage of the war is the struggle to win the hard struggle at sea this year," he said.

A qualified source explained the situation of the shipping situation to the fact that British in shipping ships is that the number of ships in the Royal Navy has been reduced to an average of 63,000 tons a week since the first of the year, compared with an average of 90,000 weekly from June to December. But even the present rate of average output, the United Kingdom's building capacity.

Since the beginning of the war, British has lost an estimated 100,000 tons of shipping.

New building, capture and purchase of United States tonnage raised the effect of this blow and British shipping remains in a position of "per cent of the pre-war level. This means of replenishing the loss of ships and the primary is a huge building program overseas—in the United States, Canada and elsewhere.

To win this war, Britain must supplement her home arm production with a mighty strength in the overseas. Any interference with this stream, any changing Britain's war policy from one of offensive to defensive, would be a disaster.

Brings within the United States to undertake a huge building program so that plans can be drafted for next year with the knowledge that tonnage will be available.

Armored Barges

Britain Preparing For Time When She Can Take Offensive Action

London.—Britain was disclosed to be equipping invasion troops for use in both Germany and Japan.

These units would be landed by armored invasion barges carrying some 200 men each. The front of the barge is something like a steel shield with 18 portholes for fast-firing guns.

The water-borne barges would be protected by anti-aircraft batteries from aerial gun and anti-aircraft bombers.

Observers put together a picture of the invasion force from details disclosed during maneuvers against mock invasion troops a month ago and given off piecemeal in connection with the recent raid on Luzon Island off Korea and pseudotelegrams in Italy.

These observers pointed out that the force would make possible quick transition from active defense to offense, when the time comes.

That, they say, will be when the Royal Air Force achieves such numerical and material superiority that it can bomb Berlin in daylight day after day without exceptional precautions in Italy.

Although publication of details of the training and equipment of the invasion troops actually is forbidden, it is permitted to say that they have exceptional air power.

They will not be equipped with amphibious or air-borne tanks but have been constructed.

It is known that the men composing the invasion units have been picked from the best physical specimens in the British and Allied armies.

One recent test required members of "beach" unit to make a force of 200 men and charge up a hill at the end. The men were able to do so at about one-third speed and live for days on one ration.

No Food Shortage

Appeal Made To Britons To Avoid Placing Heavier Load On Navy

London.—A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, appealed to Britons not to place a heavier load on the navy to risk his life to bring food to them.

He said in a broadcast that merchant navy men in the face of unprovoked attacks by the enemy are heroes. The navy, he said, works unceasingly to protect them.

He said that the navy works unceasingly to protect them from the enemy by ensuring that none of this courage and effort shall be wasted in bringing home food which can be grown here at home.

THURSDAY, MARCH 20, 1941
RELAXATION
In the midst of the dull routine of national business, the House of Commons has its moments of relaxation, a little period of repose, a momentary respite during a review of the air defense of the Dominion by the Hon. C. G. Power.

For the first time, the air defense conference held that there is no embarrassing largely large supply of gentlemen who are willing to serve as ground job officers at from $2,500 to $3,000 a year, and he also revealed that everybody wants to know why their boy cannot be an officer.

He has himself all ways to get to the place and they all want to be officers. Their parents all write to a number of parliament or to Mr. Power on this vexed question.

Apparently, the minister is himself puzzled about the matter; not so much, perhaps, on the reason why the boys cannot be officers as by the reason why they and their parents wish them to be officers.

It has been said, with a great deal of truth, that each successive war is different from the last. That may explain why Mr. Power is puzzled, for the minister himself is a veteran of the last war, and he does not lack recollections of there having been many, many more private soldiers than there were officers. However, the three-and-twenty years have elapsed since the close of the first Great War and this is an age of progress.

It is not the last war, but the last of the last. The large majority of our boys complete their education in the High Schools of the country, a section of the 3rd Division Ordinance Field Park, under the command of Lt.-Col. McDonald, who will revert to the rank of major. Those called in are: K. Krupf, Jimmy Atty, J. B. Little, M. Morrison, L. H. H. W. Fielder, R. Fielder, N. King, W. J. Morrison, M. Minstred, T. Porter, C. Porter, J. M. Porter, H. R. Porter, and Henry Porter.

in which often the ordinary constable is referred to as "officer." The commissioned ranks might then be modeled on Post Scout and be named "leaders." However, human nature being what it is, the scheme probably wouldn't work. Before long, everybody would be writing Mr. Power as to why they should not be leaders.

THIS IS MEANT FOR YOU!
The campaign for funds for Canadian War Services will get under way next week. A number of people will be canvassing and we expect to receive a large and hearty reception for them, and cheerfulness in contributing. They are responsible people imbued with a sense of responsibility to their fighting men. They are citizens going to their duty. These approaches should appreciate this.

This war is approaching a climax. Our Canadian boys are facing danger and unknown perils. Surely it is not asking much, that each one of us at home should contribute funds to help them out. Surely we are made of better stuff than to even think of failure.

The slogan is: "We cannot let our boys down."

The truth is, we dare not let them down. Surely we are made of better stuff than to even think of failure.

What your part and all will be well.

What contributions will be accepted by the Canadian War Services Fund. The War Services Fund will take delivery of your goods, and the balances do not have to be registered in the farmer's permit book. In this way, farmers can help their boys and their country.

Farmer may deliver their goods to the available cash. Farmers may deliver their contributions to any store in which there is a space, and where there is a space, made out to the "Canadian War Services Fund."
